

Tea Cover & Matching Mat

HAND-PIECED PATCHWORK · BOUND HEM · A NAMED SET

⚠️ MEASURE THE MAT BEFORE IT LEAVES TODAY. This sheet is unfinished until you do. The cover is 12" × 9" and always has been — that is published. The mat has never been measured: it was invoiced as “Matching Tea Cover Mat” and not one dimension was written down. Anything below marked from the photos is a guess and must be confirmed. ✨ The mug rug sheet was written at 6" × 9" and had to be rewritten to the real 10" × 7½". A sheet with an invented number is worse than no sheet.

Measure and write it in THEN TELL CLAUDE AND THIS BECOMES FINAL

WHAT	KNOWN	MEASURED	NOTES
Cover, width × height	12" × 9"		Published in the listing. Confirm it against the real thing while you can.
Mat, width × height	—		From the photos: roughly 12" square, 3 × 3 patches.
Patch, FINISHED size	—		From the photos: about 4", so cut 4½" with a ¼" seam.
Patch grid, cover face	—		From the photos: 3 across, the top row cut into the dome.
Binding, finished width	—		Cream, on the cover hem and all round the mat.
Layers inside the cover	—		Batting? Fleece? Lining only? This is the one that decides whether it keeps a pot warm.
Layers inside the mat	—		And is it quilted, or just turned and topstitched?
Seam allowance used	—		¼" for piecing is standard; say if you used something else.

Order of work AS FAR AS THE PHOTOS SHOW

1. Piece the patches into rows, press the seams in opposite directions row to row so they nest, then join the rows.
2. Two faces for the cover, one panel for the mat. Press everything flat before cutting anything.
3. Cut the cover faces to the dome — straight sides, a generous curve across the top. Sharp corners will not turn.
4. Layer each piece with whatever goes inside (write it in above) and quilt or baste.
5. Cover: right sides together, sew the curve, clip it, turn.
6. Bind the hem in cream, and bind the mat all round.
7. Press. It is what makes it look bought.

Fabric: all of it came off the Tea with the Suriel shelf — Something Blue, Sidra Vines, Afternoon Tea, Lace of Velaris, Porcelain Roses. The set is the best argument that collection has, because it puts five prints in one piece and you cannot do that with a single cut of fabric.

Pricing READ IT HERE, NOT FROM MEMORY

SELL IT AS A NAMED SET, not two pieces. The ready-made cover was $35. The mat was invoiced at $35, which sits under the published $40 home-pieces floor — a made-to-order piece tying the ready-made price instead of clearing it. Fine once, already done, but not again. Price the next matching piece at $40, or price the pair as one set. 🚫 No band on this sheet on purpose — the custom bands live in eight places and all eight change together. Read them off custom.html or the printed order form.

It is a product, not a one-off. She has described “a custom tea cover with a matching tea mat” as something she sells, and until 2026-09-28 there had never been a photograph of the set. There is now: assets/home-suriel-tea-set.jpg (the pair) and -2.jpg (the cover lifted off the pot). ✨ Always shoot a cosy ON the pot. Off it, it is a fabric dome and nobody knows what it is.
